WAT TREAT

CANADIAN NATIONAL WATER TREATMENT COMPETITION

SPONSORSHIP PACKAGE 2027

WHO WE ARE

We are a team of undergraduate students from the University of Waterloo competing in the annual Canadian National Water Treatment Competition (CNWTC). The interdisciplinary skills required to develop our wastewater treatment system will serve us well as we pursue graduate studies or enter the industry.

WHAT WE'RE TEACHING

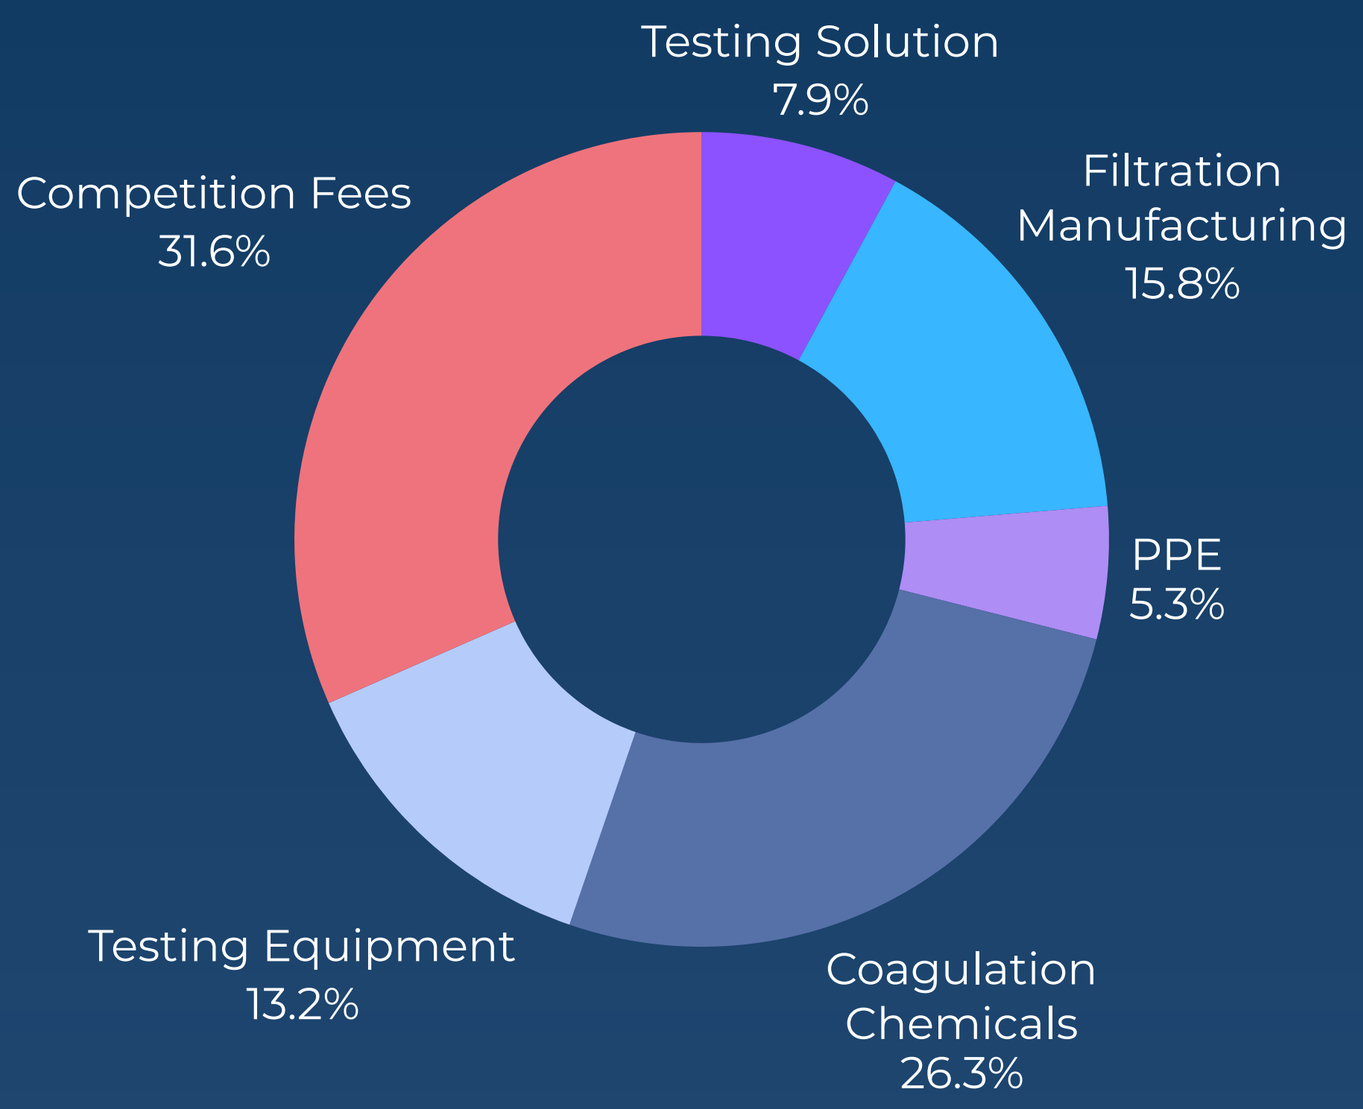

The University of Waterloo leads in some of the nation's premier water treatment and infrastructure research. We hope to teach the importance of mechanical design, biology, and chemistry in water treatment. Students will learn lab techniques and skills during our testing days, solving complex problems with unpredictable parameters, and practicle manufacturing and assembly.

WE NEED YOUR SUPPORT

We are ready to give it our all, we just need some help getting the flow started.

WAT Treat is more than a student project. We believe in this cause, and with the help of sponsors and community supporters, we can help make that vision a reality. Every contribution, whether it be monetary or in-kind, plays a key role in the success of our team and future systems.

From testing to construction, we cannot achieve our goals without the resources and materials. CNWTC 2027 will be held in Waterloo, Ontario, right on home base. For this, we have planned for a budget of $21,250

KEEPING THE FLOW GOING

Whether that be financial, material, or technical support, we want to celebrate your organization and prove how far your support will take us.

During competitions, on campus, social media, publications, events, and word of mouth, your support will not go unacknowledged. You are an integral part of our teams success and we hope you will join us on this next exciting journey to develop the future of water treatment
